Mehana Witthans concentrates her practice in the areas of environmental law and general civil litigation.

Her environmental law practice covers transactional, regulatory, and litigation matters, helping clients navigate the complex environmental law scheme facing many Hawaii businesses.

In her general civil litigation practice, she works on premises liability and personal injury defense cases, among other areas.

Mehana graduated from the University of Hawaii, William S. Richardson School of Law with a Certificate in Environmental Law. During law school, she externed at Hawaiian Electric and was a Summer Associate at Goodsill. She was an active member of her law school: a Research Associate for the Environmental Law Program, Member and Co-Captain of the National Environmental Moot Court Team, Student Representative of the Faculty Hiring Committee, and Ulu Lehua Scholar.

She is admitted to practice in Hawaii and the U.S. District Court District of Hawaii.
